Practical training program accountancy

Practical training program – open enrolment

We organise the practical training program for accountancy firms. However, it is also possible for a trainee to enrol individually (usually through their firm) in our open training program. In that case, the group will consist of trainees from different firms.

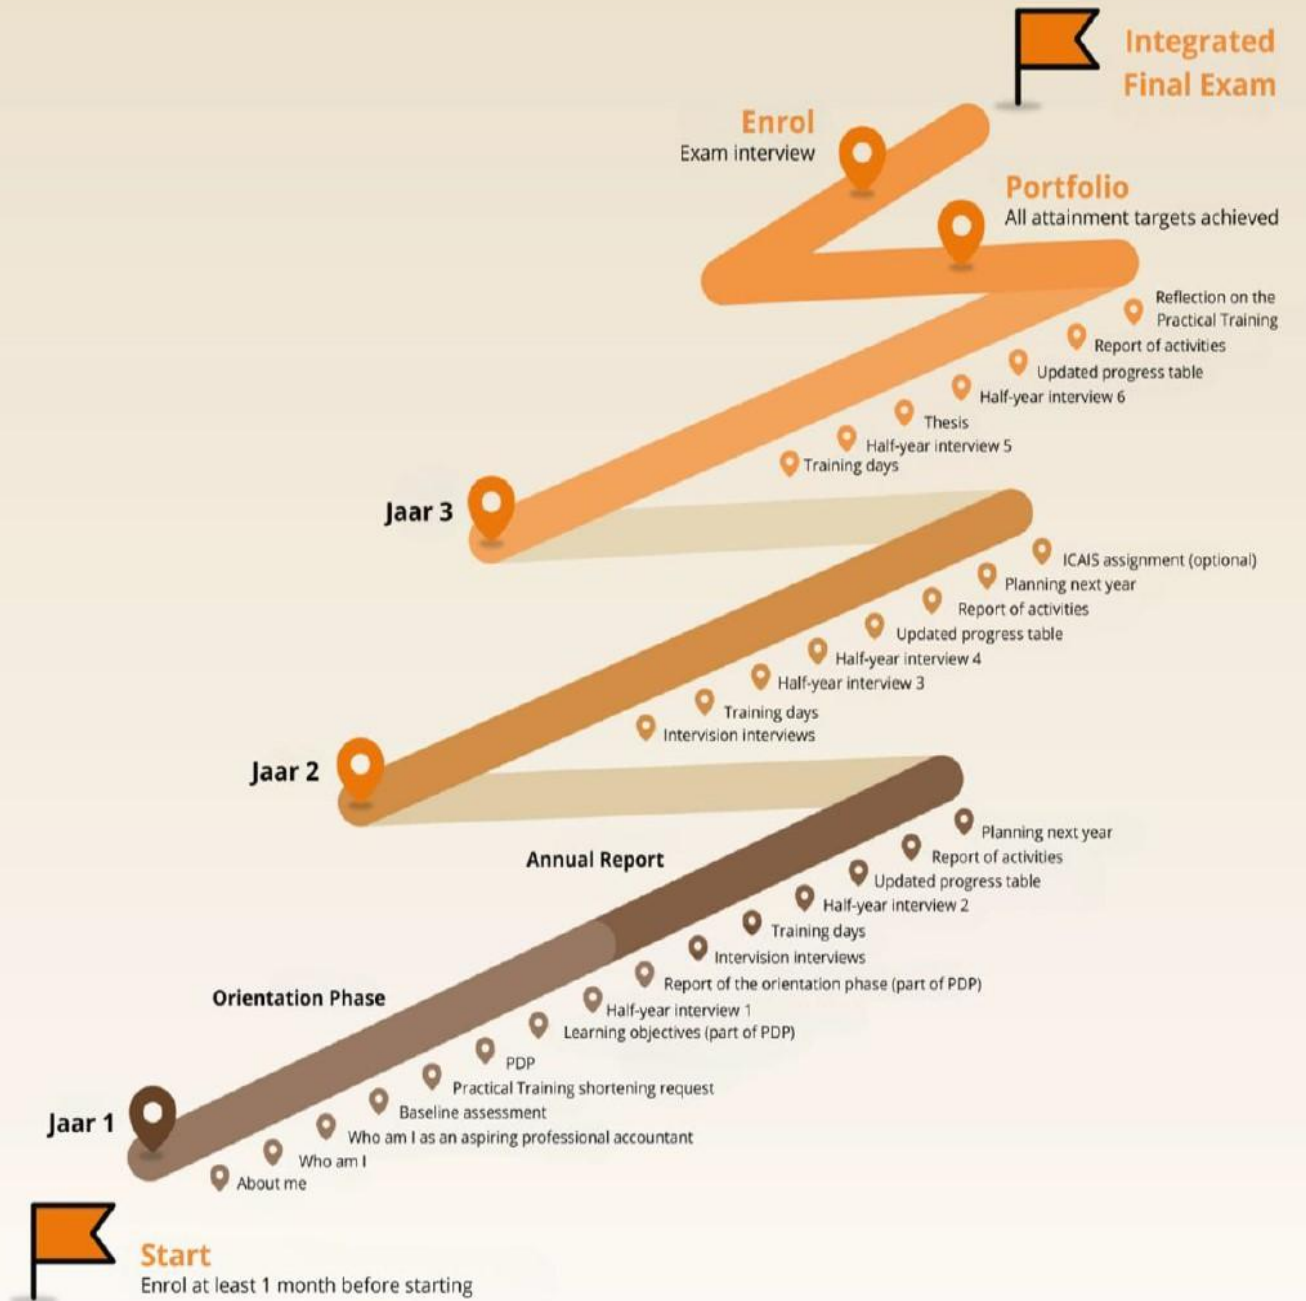

This document contains information about the entire program.

We only take care of the trainings days, intervisions, thesis (referaat) guidance and practice sessions towards the integrated final exam. The other components of the practical training program are supervised by the trainee's own internship office and/or their mentor.

Shortening request

Under certain conditions, you can apply to the NBA to have your practical training shortened by one or two years.

If this is granted, you must still complete the full training program within the remaining practical training period, i.e. all training days and intervision sessions.

An exception to this applies if you have already achieved specific learning outcomes through other training courses completed recently. Your own internship office must then grant a separate exemption for this. In this case, the exemption from the training program may cover a maximum of six days.

We also offer training and support in the other components of the practical training program. These can be taken either in conjunction with the practical training program or as standalone training.

Thesis (referaat) guidance

Writing a practical thesis is part of the practical training in year 3. We offer thesis guidance for both assurance and SME trainees. In this program of five interactive sessions, we guide trainees towards a positive result.

Practice sessions towards the integrated final exam

The conclusion of the practical training is the integrated final exam. We guide trainees intensively in preparation for the final exam. In the coaching sessions, trainees practise their presentation and final interview, and receive solid feedback and concrete advice from an experienced accountant. This way, they are optimally prepared for the exam.
